

The Story of the Lost Son

Once upon a time there was a man who said, "You my son, I want you to have half my money." So the son went off to the village with the money and spent it on things like parties and food.

But one day he became nothing but broke. So he had to be a slave and eat with the pigs. He thought, "Why am I like this? My father has slaves, but he lets them have dinner with us."

So that night he managed to escape to his father. Then when his father saw him he threw a big party for his son coming back! But the other son was very disappointed. He said, "I wish I could have a party for me." Then the father said to the second son, "My son, why don't you just cheer up and celebrate your brother coming home?" Then the second son said, "All right!"
